New Program Gives Children Head Start

1-16-75
There is a program called Headstart, formed to give families on lower incomes exactly what the name implies. The aim of the program is to provide four year olds with a year of training before they begin the first year of public instruction in grammar schools. It also is designed to better equip children with learning difficulties, those lacking in motor skills and youngsters with poorly developed muscles.

The schooling has been in progress in Utah the past five years but only begun in Heber Valley last November, when the Community Action program in Provo hired Belle Weight as a teacher and Donna Thacker as a teacher's aid. These two women have been instrumental in setting up a Headstart School in the Midway Town Hall, where the Kindergarten is located.

Next year when the next elementary school is opened, all of the tables, chairs, toys and supplies which Headstart children are now using will be moved to the new school and the only thing left will be a doll house in a big empty room. This beautiful handmade doll house was a surprise gift at Christmas time from Mrs. Person's Wasatch Jr. High Home Economics class. The entire class delivered the present and sang carols to the Headstart children. All organizations who are looking for meaningful service projects might use this as an opportunity to help furnish the children with play equipment.

Enrollment has consisted of fourteen children until recently when the Superintendent of Schools allowed an increase to eighteen students. With the availability of a school bus, Donna and Belle, who both have chauffeur licenses, can work to full capacity. The children are picked up and delivered to their homes.

At present, the program is

Dear Mr. Catmull:

An on-site inspection of the recently installed wastewater disposal system for your new home in Timberlakes Subdivision, Lot 607, in Wasatch County was conducted on November 26, 1974, by Lynden Baum of our staff.

As indicated by the enclosed inspection form, it appears that the system has been properly constructed and installed to dispose of wastewater from a two bedroom home in accordance with Part IV of the Utah "Code of Waste Disposal Regulations," and is hereby approved.

Very truly yours,
